Housing National Summary Tables

General Explanatory Notes

General Note

This leaflet contains some basic statistics of dwellings and private households and their characteristics. The tables refer to England and Wales as a whole and are published as an advance extract from the full Housing Tables where they will be reproduced.

Building

The general definition of a building in the enumerator's instruction book reads as follows:- "Every structure comprising one or more rooms or other spaces enclosed within external or party walls is to be regarded as a building".

This general description was amplified by a series of examples and exceptions:

Each house in a semi-detached pair or in a terrace or back-to-back group was to be regarded as a separate building.

A block of flats in which separate apartments were linked by passages or by balconies and staircases or lift-shafts was to be regarded as a single building.

A structure separate from, but subsidiary to, a main building and which was occupied (wholly or partly) by members of the same household as the main building (e.g. staff or other residents) was to be treated as part of the main building. A similar structure occupied only by a separate household or households was to be treated as a separate building. Other subsidiary structures such as a barn near to a farm house or a garage near to a private house, which were not used as living quarters, were not to be regarded as separate buildings.

A group of structures in a common enclosure forming a single factory or similar establishment and not used as living accommodation was treated as a single building.

Caravans, houseboats, barges, boats and other similar mobile structures were treated as buildings and included in the tables only if they were some person's usual residence on census night. Other mobile structures were not included in the tables.

Chalets, huts, shacks, tents, converted railway carriages and similar non-permanent structures were treated as buildings if they were some person's usual residence on census night. Otherwise they were treated as vacant buildings only if they had at least one of the following characteristics (which were concerned only with construction and not state of repair) -

- (a) the shorter main wall was (at a rough visual estimate) 15 ft. or more long, OR
- (b) the walls were of brick, stone and mortar, concrete, breeze blocks or similar materials (walls of wood, asbestos, corrugated iron, stones without mortar, lath or expanded metal and plaster or stonedash were not sufficient) OR
- (c) the roof was of ceramic (not asbestos) tiles, slate, thatch, shingles, concrete (corrugated iron, roofing felt, tarpaulin, etc., were not sufficient).

If the vacant structures had none of these characteristics they were ignored by the enumerators as also were dilapidated buildings which were uninhabitable.

Standard pre-fabricated houses of the kind built after the last war were treated as permanent buildings.

A further note was given to the enumerators to help them to distinguish buildings with walls with lath and plaster or stonedash from those with brick walls rendered in the same way.

Type of Building

All permanent buildings were classified by the enumerator into one of four types:-

Non-residential

A building was classed as non-residential if it was not normally occupied by any person and no person passed census night there. The presence of non-residential watchmen, shift-workers, etc., did not prevent a building being classified as non-residential.

Institutional

If the building was a residential establishment in which some form of communal feeding arrangements was provided, it was classified as institutional. Such establishments included, for example, hospitals, hotels, boarding houses, residential schools and colleges, prisons and remand homes, army camps and naval shore establishments.

Partly residential

If only part of a building (other than an institutional establishment) was used for residential purposes it was classified as partly residential. A factory, store or block of offices which contained a caretaker's flat would be so classified. In a building much of which was used for residential purposes, the presence of a shop or office would cause it to be classified as partly residential; but if the non-residential part was used as a surgery in a doctor's or dentist's house, as a study by an author or clergyman, or an insurance or other agency was operated from it by a member of the household, then the building would still be classified as wholly residential.

Wholly residential

Any building which was wholly used for residential purposes was so classified; see also the examples quoted under "Partly residential".

Dwelling

The general definition of a dwelling was given as:

"A building or part of a building which provides structurally separate living quarters".

A dwelling was normally a private dwelling house, flat or maisonette built as such, with a front door of its own. Where houses or other buildings had been adapted to provide residential accommodation in smaller units, these smaller units were regarded as dwellings if they were structurally separate i.e. if such a unit had a separate front door to the street and was self-contained (separated from the rest of the building by a wall or solid partition), then it was counted as a dwelling. When access to such a unit was through part of the building, it was counted as a dwelling only if access to the main door was gained by means of a common staircase or landing. If it could only be reached through the quarters occupied or normally occupied by another household (including a hall) it was not counted as a dwelling. In order for such a unit to count as a dwelling it also had to be possible to move between its rooms internally without making use of the common staircase or landing and normally there would only be one door of the unit opening on to the common internal part of the building (disregarding access to shop or office portions of the building).

Normally a dwelling would have more than one living room in addition to kitchen and bathroom, but one-room flats were counted as dwellings if they met the conditions set out above, provided that they either included a separate kitchenette, or had a cooking stove in the room and a separate bathroom and water closet. Bed-sitting rooms (sometimes called one-room flatlets) were not counted as separate dwellings.

The whole of the quarters occupied or normally occupied by households (i.e. the household space) within any building had to be included in one or other of the dwellings within it. If the building was arranged in such a way that there was no reasonable way of dividing it into dwellings, the whole building was regarded as a single dwelling.

In a hotel, boarding house, hospital or other institution a private dwelling was identified only if it was occupied by a private household. Generally if such a dwelling was vacant or occupied by members of the institution not constituting a private household it was not counted but married quarters in defence establishments were usually counted as dwellings. In an institution the provision for counting a unit as a dwelling only if it met certain conditions as to access was modified, in that such private quarters were counted as a dwelling even though access was through the main institution, but not if access was through another private dwelling.

Dwellings have been classified into permanent and non-permanent dwellings. A non-permanent dwelling is a dwelling in a mobile or non-permanent structure of the type not counted as a building unless it was some person's usual residence on census night (see pages i and ii). All other dwellings have been classified as permanent.

Room

A room was defined to the enumerator in the following terms:-

"A room is any covered space surrounded by walls, doors, or windows and used by the household for living, eating or sleeping. Rooms available for these purposes but not actually in use e.g. unfurnished spare bedrooms, should be included.

Landings, lobbies, recesses, closets and bathrooms should not be counted as rooms, nor should store rooms, offices, warehouses, shops or any other rooms used for non-domestic purposes.

A kitchen, kitchenette or scullery should be counted if meals are regularly eaten there, otherwise it should not".

Private Household

A private household was defined to the enumerator as follows:-

"A household comprises one person living alone or a group of persons living together, partaking of meals prepared together and benefiting from a common housekeeping.

A person or persons living but not boarding with a household in a house, flat, etc. should be treated as a separate household. But a person living with a household who usually has at least one main meal a day provided by that household while in residence is part of that household. (Breakfast counts as a meal for this purpose).

A household must have exclusive use of at least one room. If two people share one room and do not have exclusive use of at least one other room they should be treated as one household".

The rules for identifying a private household in a hotel, boarding house, hospital or other institution were in general the same as those given above except that a person or group was only treated as a private household if they were either a family group doing much of their catering separately from the institution or a person or group who did not have any meals provided daily by the institution.

Households sharing dwellings

Households which did not occupy the whole of a dwelling have been divided into two groups; those which had exclusive use of both a kitchen stove or range and a kitchen sink, and those households which did not have exclusive use of both these facilities. The information to make this division was obtained by verbal enquiry by the enumerator who then made entries 'E' (exclusive use) or 'N' (not exclusive use) in the appropriate panel on the schedule.

Non-Private Household

Non-private households are excluded from these tables.

"Non-private households" covers people who were enumerated in hotels, boarding houses and institutions or otherwise grouped in establishments with some functional purpose other than that of providing food or satisfying other domestic convenience. They include also people in defence establishments, ships at moorings or anchorage or on coastwise voyages, and a small miscellaneous element. A household classified by the enumerator as private was re-classified in the census office as non-private if the number of boarders or the number of inmates, patients, or staff, etc., was five or more. In 1951, in doubtful cases, where there were ten or more people in the group, the household was treated as non-private if the number of boarders exceeded the number in the family of the head of the household; all households with under ten people were treated as private. If all the people who were enumerated in a non-permanent structure (huts, chalets, etc.) or in a mobile structure (caravans, houseboats, etc.) gave a usual residence elsewhere, they were all transferred to the residual 'other population' group of non-private households. In some institutions there are private households having separate accommodation and catering, e.g. the medical superintendent of a hospital with his family, the headmaster of a school or a hotel manager. These have been excluded from the non-private households to which they are attached and included with other private households; their accommodation has been included in the private dwellings. In 1951 they were included in the non-private population.

Household Space

The household space is the quarters occupied or normally occupied by a private household. In a dwelling which is normally occupied by a number of households any vacant accommodation has usually been regarded as a single vacant household space, although a few household spaces which became vacant just before census date appear in the tables as separate vacant spaces in dwellings which already contain one vacant space.

Occupied and Vacant Dwellings

A permanent dwelling was regarded as "occupied" if one or more households were enumerated in the dwelling or at the time of the census were usually resident in the dwelling although not present on census night. A permanent dwelling was regarded as "vacant" if no household was enumerated there on census night and if it was not the usual residence of any household.

Ownership and Renting

Each household was asked to state how they occupied their accommodation. The categories listed (the answer 'Yes' to be given to one of the categories) were:-

(a) As owner occupiers (including purchase by mortgage)

As well as freeholders this category included households which occupied their accommodation on a lease which was originally granted for more than 21 years, or had been extended for more than 21 years. If the accommodation was held on a shorter lease it should have been included in one of the other categories.

(b) By renting it with a farm, shop or other business premises

(c) By virtue of employment

A household should have been included in this category if the accommodation was provided in connection with the employment of a member of the household and would cease to be provided after the employment came to an end. The tied cottage and the caretaker's flat were the examples cited on the schedule, other examples are accommodation provided by a firm for its employees, that provided by the Police for police officers and the vicarage. This category did not include accommodation obtained by an employer for an employee, without any condition as to employment.

Where a person obtained the accommodation by virtue of his employment, but had since retired from or left that employment the household should still have been included in this category. Generally, such accommodation would be occupied for a limited period after the particular employment came to an end.

(d) By renting it from the Council or New Town Corporation

(e) By renting it from another landlord, furnished or unfurnished

The household had to specify whether the accommodation was rented furnished or unfurnished.

(f) In some other way - please give details

This category was provided for various tenancies where the household might be in doubt as to the correct answer: in such cases a full description was sought. All these cases have been assigned, on the basis of the information given, to one of the other categories.

Household Arrangements

The census schedule contained the following notes on the different household arrangements:-

Cold water tap. This refers to a tap within the building. It does not include a tap in an open yard or a public standpipe. If only the latter are available, the answer 'none' should be given.

Hot water tap. This means water piped to any form of heating appliance which will allow hot water to be drawn from a tap within the building, e.g. a boiler, tank with immersion heater, geyser, or sink heater.

Fixed bath. This means a bath permanently installed with a waste pipe leading outside the building. It does not matter for this purpose whether there is water piped to it or whether the room where it is installed is used only as a bathroom or not.

Water Closet. This means any water closet emptying into a main sewer, septic tank or cesspool. It does not include a chemical closet or earth closet. It must be within the building or attached to it.

Quality of Figures

In 1961 for the first time a post enumeration survey was taken in order to check the information collected at the census. A full description of the survey will be given in the general report on the census; in the explanatory notes to volumes of tables the post enumeration survey results will only be given where they give a warning of poor quality in figures appearing in the volume.

The items relevant to these tables which were checked in the post enumeration survey were the total count of the number of buildings and households, the answers relating to ownership and renting of accommodation, and household arrangements. Some points on the last two topics appear below. The post enumeration survey did not indicate any significant error in the total numbers of buildings and households.

Ownership and Renting of Accommodation

The number of households returned as renting their accommodation unfurnished from a private person or company was understated on the original census schedule compared with the post enumeration survey. The households which should have been returned as "renting unfurnished" were returned in all other groups except "holding their accommodation by virtue of employment". The post enumeration survey indicates that the numbers wrongly returned in the other groups did not differ greatly. However because of the sampling errors involved only the overstatement of the number renting furnished is statistically significant.

Household Arrangements

(i) Cold water tap

The post enumeration survey indicates that the number of households returned as being without a cold water tap is understated but it is not possible to give an accurate estimate of the degree of understatement due to the relatively small size of this group of households.

(ii) Water Closet

The post enumeration survey indicates that the number of households returned as being without a water closet is understated. Some ambiguity in the wording of the questionnaire used for the post enumeration survey means that the amount of understatement cannot be estimated accurately but it appears that the number of such households was at least 1.5 million compared with the number returned of 1,008,802.

Presentation Conventions

A blank indicates that a particular combination of line and column is impossible or would contain a derived figure such as a rate which has not been calculated.

The symbol - indicates zero.

The symbol 0 indicates less than one half of a unit but not zero.
